

I will and bequeath all my Members to the mercy of the Gentlemen who have been taking Pity for them; to be punished at the discretion of those who will be just to me upon my death. I will and bequeath all my Members to the mercy of the Gentlemen who have been taking Pity for them; to be punished at the discretion of those who will be just to me upon my death.

Last Will and Testament

I will and bequeath all my Members to the mercy of the Gentlemen who have been taking Pity for them; to be punished at the discretion of those who will be just to me upon my death. I will and bequeath all my Members to the mercy of the Gentlemen who have been taking Pity for them; to be punished at the discretion of those who will be just to me upon my death.

In the name of Jesus, Rebellion, and Treason, I, James Earl of Mar, having received a Discomfiture by a late cold Wind out of the North, which hath brought me into an Ague, and likewise a Welch Heat, which hath turned my Ague into a desperate Fever, I am so much that I am desperately sick in every part, corner, and cranny of my Body; and finding by common computation that the time of my continuance cannot be long, and that all my Body being poisoned, and so likely to continue languish; I thought good to let all things in a readiness as near as I could, inasmuch that after my decease there may be no striving for my Possession, but that as I have got my riches with an ungodly and indirect conscience, all my Heirs and true Sons of Rebellion, Treason, Murder, and I beg, may enjoy my Estate, and may enjoy the same fortune after me, without molestation or hinderance, to them and their Heirs for ever.

Next, I will and bequeath my Soul to go to the place which our Maker hath ordain'd for Traytors, Murderers, Thieves, and Hypocrites, there to receive its due demerit and punishment, according to the Justice of my Creator, which is bestowed upon all those that live and die in known sins and transgressions.

Next, I will and bequeath the Mouth of my Upper House, the Earl of Manchester, to the will of my Apostate Servants John Lilburne, Adolphus, Overton, and Freke, to be cut, launged, carved, and anatomized, as they in their devilish discretion shall think fit.

Next, I will and bequeath my Royal Jaylour the Earl of Northumberland, for his Negligence, Carelessness, and Malignancy, in letting the Duke go away without leave, and for not making him commit Matrimony with his Daughter the young Spaw, of Rebellion and Treason, to the mercy and goodness of the Duke's Father and himself.

Next, I will and bequeath my dumb, stupid, ignorant Member the Earl of Pembroke to the House of Correction, conceiving that he is not guilty of so much wit, as to distinguish betwixt good and bad, Religion and Rebellion, Treason and true Loyalty; there to be whipped and scourged according to his behaviour and just merit.

Next, I will and bequeath my Lord of Salisbury to be whipped at a Cart-tail, from Windsor to York.

I will and bequeath all my Members to the mercy of the Gentlemen who have been taking Pity for them; to be punished at the discretion of those who will be just to me upon my death. I will and bequeath all my Members to the mercy of the Gentlemen who have been taking Pity for them; to be punished at the discretion of those who will be just to me upon my death.

from York to London, from London to Windsor, by reason he hath turned the Cart three or four times, first, with the King at York, next with the Presbyterian at London, next with the Independent General, and now a Compliant with the City; and with my good Son Gregory not to spare, but whip him with a fourfold cord. Whip, because it is a punishment lasting his fourfold turning.

Next, I will and bequeath my late Members the Earl of Middlesex, and my onely Sons of Sedition, to play at Boh-pere upon a Scaffold in Greenwich four several Market days, in that they counterfeited other ways for four whole years together, when their Consciences told them plainly, they were not of my Members, but Bastard begotten of the Malignant, only sitting with them for fashion.

Next, I will and bequeath my Lord Son to the Scaffold on St. James's Hill, to make the Londoner his Priest by confession, by reason he by his Seditious hath brought these Calamities which now lie upon us; nay, he hath been plotting my ruine these 10 years and more, and hath been the great Instrument to destroy all Monarchy, Rule, and Religion, he himself being an Atheist. I could wish that after Execution his Body might be sent into some strange and far Country, lest it infect (if buried here) our Land with more Anarchy and Atheism, and that his Head may not be honoured with a place upon the Bridge, with his younger Brothers the Jesuits, lest they molest the dwellers there by their railing at him who brought them as well as himself to shame.

Next, I will and bequeath my Lord William (that lying Member) my Tongue, so belov'd through him by my Son Gregory's Nail, to the same place, if all these loud and notorious Murmurs told by him, touching Edenhill and all his Forgeries at the Cliffe Committed; and I wish the Ages to come, would have these words of William and Edenhill now read in the ears of all men, as a warning, that they may not fall into the same snare. And after this punishment do I commend him to the same destiny with his Leader the Lord Wyatt, that they may do both in one way, with the same Bloud, they may do both in one way, with the same Bloud, they may do both in one way, with the same Bloud.

Best, I will and bequeath all my Mongrel Members as Warwick, Stamford, Exeter, North, and the rest, to a fair Composition with the King and his Friends, and heartily wish Sir Marmaduke Langdale will take an Inventory of them, and sell them as he shall think fit, and them and the Money to be paid for them, to Langdale Denbigh had at the Isle of Wight with His Majesty.

part, I will and bequeath my Speaker of the House of Commons to be hanged in Newgate Prison, the Kings Bench, left his Brother let him make an Elbow as he did Sir Lewis, and three hundred Chains and Bolts made of his Gold to fetter him in, which hath been set by Blasphemy, Blasphemy, and Blasphemy there to remain till the next Session, and then to have the same Sledge to convey him to Tower, which he gave order to be so done for the same, whose must needs say was the worst Rebel of the two, Macquire rebelled but for Conscience, but my Speaker for Coin: On it was that Coin, that accursed Coin, that hath brought this destruction to me and all my Members: therefore I will my Son Charles to take him, that he may hang by the Neck till he be dead.

1792. I will and bequeath my two Yankee to make wry mouths at my Son Green's Church before his Congregation. Our pray, good Son Henry, let my young Son Harry go first, because he came first to be one of my Members, and if all my Plot would be he fore his Father, therefore I desire since he was so forward at making, let him have the Honor to go first to naming.

9b griefe, Twine and benewth my preetearing Member Murthering Marrows to the mercy of the spiritual Bawds, Whores and Souldiers, to be loved of the Fox, as for I fear me should be he trane up in one of his Son Grebo-ry's Slips. He would drop away and leave his head behind him, his Limbs and Legs being to rotten with the Peblousness.

But with that the tearing of His Majesty's Proclamation may be set upon his Brother, and be judged a cruel Enemy to my own Members, and his words concerning the King's Just Privileges, who said if the King had his just Right should be judged for all that hath been done in my rebellious cause.

Next, I will and bequeath my Committee at Court to the mercy of the Gentlemen who have been taking Physick there, to be punished at the dicretion of those who I hope will see Justice done upon them. As for what I could have for my self, a clear conscience to them, not of the Moneys they received.

I will and bequeath all my Committees of Sequelation, to the publishers of the Independent in the hands of my Lord of Worcester, my Lord Newcastle, my Lord Barb, my Lord Bury, my Lord Hopkin, and Sir Richard Grimsh, who I am sure will not be sparing to be to them, as truly I will and desire you (as you will answer the request of a dying man) not to spare these men but punish them severely, by reason they have been my ruin, and brought this destruction upon all my Members.

First, I will and bequeath my Army of Saints and in that I bequeath my spiritual Phylax as a Phylax, 2 London, New, and in all my Gardens where be and Phylax, to the mercy of my Lord Phylax to be damned, unpunished, and punished as he in his judgment shall think fit.

But, I will not bequeath any New-lighted or Chenandier, Spark, London Ball, and all others of that Religion, of what size or mark soever, to be transported with an Indian to Manilla, or to Amsterdam, there to remain till the Lord hath sent them instruments to pull in some other Nation.

...I will and bequeath all my Clerks, Door keepers, and all other Officers, Hangers on, Servants, Carthorses, Bunnies, Ring-a-way-men, Corn-cutters, and Tooth-bravers, to my honest Servant Gregory.

I will and bequeath my Assemblies of Divines to be reformed, instructed, admonished, and corrected by my Lord Bishop of London, and the rest of that orthodox, Apostolical, True Divine Function, and the rest of that Loyal Society. But in case they shall not repent, then do I enable my Son Gregory to take them into safe custody, and see them look through a Hemlock Lettice a long hour by the clock. And I do bequeath him their long Cloaks, for Gowns are an Abomination unto them, and indeed to is all wholesome Order and Discipline; they have been the Seminary and seed plot of devilish devices, who for these seven years have cherished all those Spiritual Engineers of sedition, Rebellion, and Murder, in these three Kingdoms, which they would never have pursued had the King but bestowed Bishopsricks and Deanries upon them: It was nothing (my sad Friends) but want of reformation that made them stick to cloth to me.

This have I as near as I could bequeathed all my Millions according to my desire, being in perfect and memory, hoping no one will be so ungodly or will see my Will performed, and do I appoint my dear Friend Jackey of Scotland and my Executor and Sir Armand Kinnaird and Colonel Poynter my Overseers.
